

Christian Formation Inspiration from the Center for the Ministry of Teaching

What is Building Faith?

A resource website providing practical tools, features, reviews, and articles on Christian formation for children, youth, and adults of all ages. New content is posted every week.

Who Runs Building Faith?

The site was conceived and built by Church Publishing Inc, under the leadership of Sharon Ely Pearson. In 2014 Building Faith changed hands to Virginia Theological Seminary, which now runs the site through their Center for the Ministry of Teaching (CMT).

The Rev. Matthew Kozlowski and Ms. Charlotte Hand Greeson serve as editors, and they are the primary contacts for Building Faith.

Who Writes for Building Faith?

People like you! Staff and volunteers around the country, working and ministering in and outside of the church. The common thread is a passion for teaching Christian faith to all ages, and forming disciples of Jesus Christ.

Who Reads Building Faith?

The site receives thousands of hits per week, with a strong subscriber base and a large Facebook/Twitter presence. Many readers (and writers) are connected with the Episcopal tradition, but other denominations – Methodist, Lutheran, Roman Catholic, and more – are represented.

Writing an Article

Our posts are usually around 500 words, with 750 words as a maximum. Writers often provide pictures, which greatly enhance the content. The key theme at Building Faith is practical information and ideas related to Christian formation. Topics are wide-ranging, but we strive for all posts to be helpful, sharable, and positive.

Contributors email articles to the editors who format, edit, and post them on the main site and via Facebook/Twitter. Building Faith pays writers, per article, via Amazon gift cards.

How are Articles Published and Shared?

Content is first posted on Building Faith, but may be subsequently shared and re-posted, with cited attribution to the author and to Building Faith, in other web or print publications.
